Every seat was occupied; but the gentlemanly usher at once surrendered his own, and, stepping back, became much interested in watching the effect of the sermon upon the western orator. As Mr. Beecher developed his line of argument, Mr. Lincoln s body swayed forward, his lips parted, and he seemed at length entirely unconscious of his surroundings--frequently giving vent to his satisfaction, at a wellput point or illustration, with a kind of involuntary Indian exclamation--ugh! --not audible beyond his immediate presence, but very expressive! Mr. Lincoln henceforward had a profound admiration for the talents of the famous pastor of Plymouth Church. He once remarked to the Rev. Henry M. Field, of New York, that he thought there was not upon record, in ancient or modern biography so productive a mind as had been exhibited in the career of Henry Ward Beecher 1 o: Lincoln s Love for Little Tad. No matter who was with the President, or how intently absorbed, his little son Tad was always welcome. He almost always accompanied his father. Once on the way to Fortress Monroe, he became very troublesome. The President was much engaged in conversation with the party who accompanied him, and he at length said: Tad, if you will be a good boy, and not disturb me any more till-we get to Fortress Monroe, I will give you a dollar. The hope of reward was effectual for a while in securing silence,...
